Dear Tom Zhang:

I rented a nice 3-bedroom suite from Flying Stone Canada and I was quite happy with the house and their service. In addition, I liked their down-to-earth way of doing business without losing the ground of high level of their professionalism.

One thing I was very impressed during my stay. Near the end of my lease, I had to move to a new city due to job relocation, but the new place will not be ready till the 5th of the month, and the town was booming so there was no any hotel room left, and I don't really know anyone there either. When I brought this concern to Flying Stone Canada staff, they helped me to stay in a vacant nice room for 5 days with the promise that I will leave the place as clean as I came in. which I did. This seems not a big deal to someone but to me it meant a lot as otherwise I really would have no clue what I could do beside sleep inside my own truck for 5 days. I was so grateful to them, and I brought one tray of my favorite homemade chicken wings to the office and dipped with my hometown chilly Sause. It was fun!

I feel they are a great company, as they always take extra effort to help their clients, versus many others seems only care to make money for their own. I highly recommend Flying Stone Canada to anyone who are looking for a great place to live and an excellent company to work with.
